Open Innovation Call

2 June 2017

Do you have innovative ideas within sustainable technologies? Are you an entrepreneur or an expert within sustainable food production, waste management, residual heat or the circular economy? Get the chance to realise your ideas and win SEK 2 million!

Take part in our exciting Open Innovation competition to establish urban food production sites in the Swedish cities of Malmö, Lund, Oskarshamn and Bjuv, which will use residual heat (also known as wasted heat) from nearby industries as their main input. These cities plan to capture the low temperature residual heat waste emitted as clean warm water from their industries and use it to produce fish, vegetables and other biological products in units located in their urban areas.

The competition's objective is to source full and partial solutions for all aspects of this exciting venture and is designed in such a way as to take interesting, yet raw, ideas and develop them into a full solution tailored to the needs of one or more of the potential locations over the duration of the competition.

We are seeking creative ideas and innovators to be a part of this process. Those applicants who make it through the initial stage will be entitled to counselling and professional support to co-develop their solutions.

Prize money has been made available for those participants involved in each stage of the competition and SEK 2,000,000 (approximately EUR 210,000) has been reserved for those involved in the final solution.

ICA Fastigheter, E.ON, Veolia, Kraftringen, SLU, Climate-KIC Nordic and a number of other partners have received funding from the Swedish Innovation Agency, Vinnova to launch this open innovation initiative.
